

MOSHE MIKANOVSKY

Author | Product Leader

MORE ABOUT MOSHE

Moshe is the author of the upcoming novel The Resurrector (January 2021, New Degree Press), and a product leader.

Being a creative person, Moshe paints and writes, bringing his Jewish heritage into all his creative endeavors.

*He started writing The Resurrector during 2013 NaNoWriMo, and since then studied creative writing at University of Toronto School of Continuing Studies. His short stories were published on The Nabu Review and Elijah Lucian's Flash Fiction Compilation.*

*As a product leader, Moshe applies similar methodologies to write and publish his book. He is also the co-host of the Product for Product Podcast.*

Living in Toronto with his wife and three daughters, he can't stand the cold winters but loves his Canadian home and the maple trees all over.

CONTACT DETAILS:

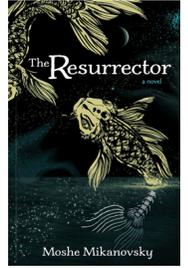

- ✉ mmikanovsky@gmail.com
- in mikanovsky
- 📷 moshe.mikanovsky.author
- 🌐 www.mikanovsky.com

ABOUT THE BOOK

CAN THE RESURRECTOR BRING BACK A LOVED ONE? WHAT WOULD WE LEARN IF THEY COULD?

The Levi family are mourning the shocking death of their son when a stranger arrives and gives the father a second chance to see his dead son. Can he right his wrongs and reconcile with the dead? And who is the stranger everyone calls The Resurrector?

The story of The Resurrector happens in one of the most religious cities in Israel, and is weaved with cultural references from my background growing up an Israeli Jew.

You will love this book if you love reading about family relationships that know no boundaries and you enjoy learning about cultures from countries that may be different than your own. This story also includes intrigue, mystery and seeks to make us think about what happens after life.

The Resurrector speaks to adults who love a bit of mystery and a bit of magical realism, and want to grapple with father and sons relationships and the power that connects all of us as families, in a new way.

The Resurrector inspires reflection on questions such as:

- Are we wasting energy on nurturing old grudges rather than building relationships?
- Can we learn about other cultures through reading books?
- Is the mystical confined to one culture or it just have different names around the world?

EARLY PRAISE FOR THE RESURRECTOR

Moshe Mikanovsky has stirred me in unexpected and surreal ways. I suspect each reader will discover something recognizable and emotional in them as well while reading The Resurrector. Stuart Luis, author *When Walls Become Bridges: A Journey of Discovery to Heal and Conquer Hatred

For those who have ever wished they could make amends to deceased loved ones and spiritually reconnect with them, The Resurrector by Moshe Mikanovsky is the book for you. Meryl Ain, author The Takeaway Man and *The Living Memories Project: Legacies That Last

An empowering tale with deep characterization and heavy imagery, blending both family and self discovery. An impressive debut by a rising author. Jahmil Effend, author When the Crown Gambles and *War in the Fallows: The High Council Series

BOOK CLUB AUTHOR DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

- What inspired you to write The Resurrector?
- Do you believe in life after death?
- Is the book based on true story or real characters?
- How do you bring Israel and your upbringing in the book?
- What is the one thing you would like readers to take from the book?
- How did you apply your background as a product manager to write the book?